

PALAZZO BENZON

| VENEZIA |

*“The parties at Palazzo Benzon are much more enjoyable than those in Paris.”
(Stendhal)*

Palazzo Benzon is located in a privileged position in the Canal Grande, between the bridge of Rialto and the one of the Accademia, in the Sestiere San Marco.

Built at the beginning of the 18th century, this palace takes the place of a building previously demolished. The piano nobile of the Conti Benzon (an illustrious Venetian family of ambassadors, tradesmen and soldiers whose origins date back to the 16th century) is lavishly decorated with sumptuous frescoes, paintings and Venetian stuccos. Today it is considered a UNESCO heritage site.

The central salon, which occupies nearly the entire space of the piano nobile from the balcony over the inner garden to the main one on the Canal Grande, can be considered as the first example of Fortuny's stencil technique which recalls the famous fabrics.

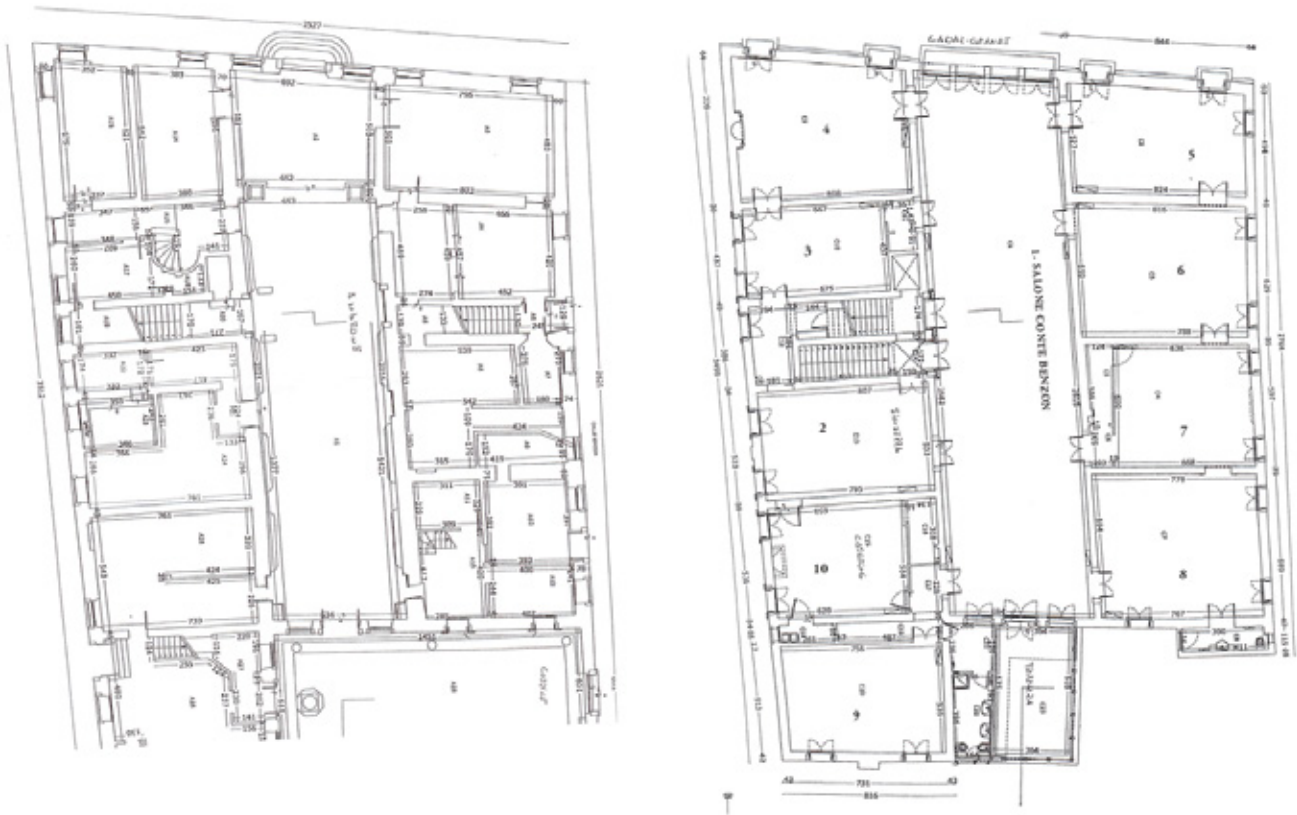

The ten frescoed rooms connected with one another along with the wide balconies on the Canal Grande, the broad entrance hall and the precious garden offer the possibility to host prestigious events, unforgettable feasts, exclusive wedding receptions, corporate reunions, art exhibitions, photoshoots and concerts of classical music.

The Palace is famous for the social gatherings organized by the Venetian noblewoman Marina Querini Benzon, wife of the Count Pietro Benzon. Tall, with blonde hair and light blue eyes, her vivacious charm has inspired the famous historical song "La biondina in gondoleta". Her charming cultural salons has hosted personalities like Casanova, Foscolo, Chateaubriand, Stendhal, Lord Byron and Canova.
